PAWPRINT BADGES

- ♥ Build a tower from biscuits. How tall can you make it and which biscuits are the best for building?
- ♥ Design your ideal biscuit.

Did You Know?

In 2001 a biscuit that had been on board a lifeboat on the Titanic was sold at auction for £15,000 becoming the World's most expensive biscuit! We're not sure it would have tasted so good after all that time...

- ♥ Create your own biscuit packaging. Take a look at existing branding and create an updated version for your favourite tea-time treat!
- ♥ Re-purpose a biscuit tin, what else could it be used for? Decorate it, use it as a plant pot, get creative and let your imagination run wild!

Why?

Biscuit tins have been used for a variety of things from a travelling garden to grow garlic by a Mongolian chieftain to a coffin for Queen Victoria's son-in-law. Prince Henry, who died in Sierra Leone was brought home in a rum-filled tank made out of biscuit tins!

- ♥ Make miniature biscuits from oven bake clay and turn them in to charms, jewellery or decorations.
- ♥ Have a go at illustrating/drawing your favourite biscuits and print or paint on to fabric, like the designer Nikki McWilliams (www.nikkimcwilliams.com).
- ♥ Build and decorate a gingerbread house.
- ♥ Use biscuit cutters and clay/salt dough to make decorations for around your home or some festive decorations for a Christmas tree.
- ♥ Make your own edible garland or bunting using biscuits, use our free resource to help you - recipe included!
- ♥ Fold your own biscuit box using your origami skills.
- ♥ Make your own Funeral Biscuit wrappers. Funeral biscuits were given in Victorian times in memory of the dead. Each biscuit was wrapped in a commemorative paper with details about the person's life and achievements...how do you want to be remembered? Why not bake your own biscuits for your 'Food' challenge!

Food

PAWPRINT
BADGES

- ♥ Bake some American style biscuits. Usually savoury and eaten for breakfast, they're more like a scone in size and texture and not what we in the UK think of as a biscuit at all!
- ♥ The first biscuits in Britain were sponge fingers flavoured with aniseed and advertised as a breath freshener. Bake some aniseed biscuits and try.
- ♥ Find a recipe that requires cooking twice and have a go at making it!

Why?

The word biscuit comes from the French 'biscuit' (bis-qui) which has Latin roots meaning baked twice!

- ♥ Bake and enjoy some tea and biscuits. WWII made tea and biscuits into a 'thing' when biscuit manufacturers supplied canteens so essential workers could get their sweet fix alongside rather than in their tea during sugar rationing!
- ♥ Taste test different teas; which one goes best with a biscuit? The Queen prefers a cup of Earl Grey!
- ♥ Bake gingerbread.

Why?

Gingerbread men are modelled on Guy Fawkes! After the gunpowder plot in 1605, biscuit figures sold at fairs became more of a likeness to Guy Fawkes than the Catholic saints they were originally. You could show your support for the Protestant cause by eating the villainous Fawkes!

- ♥ Make a cheesecake using biscuit spread.
- ♥ In 2020 the chocolate digestive was voted the number 1 biscuit. Make them, decorate them or use them to make s'mores, possibly our favourite use for these tasty tea-time dunkers!
- ♥ Queen Elizabeth's favourite tea cake is Chocolate Biscuit Cake. Please tell me we weren't the only one who hadn't heard of this before? Find a recipe and give it a try...it might become your favourite too!
- ♥ Find and make an old biscuit recipe; perhaps one passed down through your family or a historical recipe. Why not link this to one of our History Timeline badges and tick off two challenges with one bake?!

Games

PAWPRINT
BADGES

- ♥ Create your own biscuit Trumps card game; use our free template for your cards and taste, test and dunk those biscuits for accurate ratings!
- ♥ Name that biscuit! Can you name the biscuit just by looking at the crumbs?
- ♥ Can you identify the biscuits correctly from a blind taste test?
- ♥ 9% of people in the UK have hidden biscuits in their sock draw! Head off on a biscuit treasure hunt, where will be the strangest place you find one?
- ♥ Karate chop those biscuits!

Why?

In 2012 Elliot Allen set the World Record breaking through 18 digestive biscuits with one karate chop. How do you compare?

- ♥ Make some edible dominoes from Bourbon biscuits or shortbread fingers and have a game or two. Alternatively bake your own!

Did You Know?

Bourbon biscuits are said to get their name from the French Royal House of Bourbon. However, contrary to popular belief, the name from the 1930s comes from the contraction of the names Bourneville (the place of its invention) and Bonn (hometown of its inventor Dr. Hans Zehnlock). The 10 holes on the biscuit come from the fact that Zehnlock literally translates as '10 holes'.

- ♥ In 1939 McVities produced 370 varieties of biscuit but this had reduced to just 10 in 1945. How many different biscuits can you name?
- ♥ It takes just 7 minutes to perfectly bake a digestive. Test yourself with some minute-to-win-it games and see how many you can win in 7 minutes.
- ♥ Try some edible board games such as scrabble, draughts, etc. Why not count the making and baking as your Food challenge?
- ♥ How fast can you eat a biscuit? Trick question! Tilt your head backwards and place a biscuit on your forehead. Now how fast can you eat it without touching it with your hands?
- ♥ Make your own Jenga with biscuits...will it last long enough to play or will it get eaten first?!
- ♥ Decorate a gingerbread man with your 'wrong' hand or blindfolded!

PAWPRINT
BADGES

- ♥ Celebrate Biscuit Day on 29th May...that's the same date as Charlotte's birthday! We knew there must be a reason for her love of biscuits!!
- ♥ Experiment: which biscuit is best for dunking?
- ♥ Debate; is a Jaffa Cake a biscuit or a cake? This even went to court!
- ♥ 83% of people would rather have a biscuit and a brew than go out on a date. What's your ideal date? Why not discuss it with a friend over a biscuit and a brew?
- ♥ Discover the history of ship's biscuits.
- ♥ Biscuits were the first food to reach the South Pole with Roald Amundsen in 1911 and a Bourbon biscuit was the first biscuit to be eaten on the moon by Edwin Allen. Take your biscuits on an adventure, where will you end up?
- ♥ On average in the UK we buy 500 biscuits every year per person. Collect 500 (or more) biscuits and donate them to your local food bank.
- ♥ Bake 500 biscuits and sell them to raise money for charity.
- ♥ 45° is the optimal angle for dunking according to McVities food scientist Dr. Stuart Farrimond. Test out this theory in your own experiment.
- ♥ Enjoy a cuppa and a biscuit with friends. Why not take part in a fundraising event like Macmillan Cancer Support's World's Biggest Coffee Morning?
- ♥ Go on a biscuit world tour and discover biscuits from around the world. Have a go at making and then tasting them. How do they compare?
- ♥ Watch an episode of the BBC's Inside the Factory and see how biscuits are made.
- ♥ Create an edible biscuit timeline and see how biscuits have changed through the centuries.
- ♥ Find out your own fun biscuit facts and share them with friends and family in a fun way...maybe you could even make them edible?!
- ♥ Alfie, the Pawprint Family pooch, enjoys a biscuit or two (of the dog variety of course!) Have a go at making your own dog biscuits or investigate what goes in to a dog biscuit that's different from a human biscuit.
