Become a personal investigator

For leaders

This activity is suited to older groups who use social media on a regular basis and provides great awareness to show how much information is readily available online. Have your young people bring a phone or laptop with internet capability to your meeting. Put all the names in a hat and get each person to pick one at random. They must then spend time investigating online to find out as much information as they can about that person. Tip: log out from all social media accounts before completing this activity
